15 ice fisherman drown when power plant's hot water melts frozen river!

PLANT spokesman Alexei Datnoff

TWO ICE fishermen fish on the Sukhona River in Russia, one day after 15 of their comrades fell through the ice.

By MAX CLAY
Special correspondent

At least 15 Russian ice fishermen dropped into a river and drowned when drunken power plant workers discharged millions of gallons of boiling water — instantly melting the ice the fishermen were standing on!

And far from apologizing for the tragedy, a spokesman for the cooperative that operates the plant on the Sukhona River east of St. Petersburg said the victims "deserved what they got because they were fishing in a dangerous place — and they should have known it."

"You fish near the power plant, you take your chances," spokesman Alexei Datnoff told the Russian news agency Tass. "I'll admit that our men were drinking, but accidents like these are going to happen no matter how many precautions you take."

The incredibly deadly drama unfolded one morning as at least 15 men and women fished on the frozen river just south of the coal-fired plant, which generates electricity with the steam from boiling water.

Details remain sketchy, but Datnoff conceded that "a few technicians came to work drunk."

Their work order for the day instructed them to flush the plant's discharge pipes with a few thousand gallons of hot water.

But they apparently misread their instructions and released millions of gallons of boiling water from the plant's holding tanks into the river, raising its water temperature by 35 to 40 degrees in a matter of seconds.

Eyewitnesses said the ice river and drown in the swirling currents.

"Everything happened so fast that I still have trouble believing it," said a factory worker who watched the fishermen drown from his vantage point on the bank of the river.

"When the hot water came out of the plant, a wall of steam rolled over the ice before the fishermen knew what they went. They never had a chance." The technicians who released the water were not identified, but Datnoff said they will be disciplined for the mistake. "The guys probably shouldn't have been drinking on the job," he conceded.

Miracle of love!

BOYFRIEND'S ROSE STOPS BULLET AND SAVES GIRL'S LIFE!

Pretty Maria Delponte owes her life to a gift of love — a single rose that deflected a bullet aimed directly at her heart!

Auburn-haired Maria was clutching the deep pink blossom to her chest when she was suddenly caught in the crossfire of a gun battle between rival drug gangs.

Incredibly, a bullet headed for her heart was deflected by the flower's tightly furled petals and the Bogota, Colombia, 17-year-old survived with barely a scratch.

"It's the most amazing thing I've ever seen," said police inspector Manuel Arrengo.

"The bullet hit at just the right angle, so that instead of penetrating the flower, it ricocheted away.

"This girl is extremely lucky to be alive. It's a miracle, a one-in-a-billion long-shot."

By SALLY CARRUBBA
Correspondent

Maria had just finished a romantic lunch with her fiance Alberto Vasquez, 21, when her spine-chilling escape occurred. Clutching the rose her sweetheart had given her, the teenager was returning to work at a bookkeeping firm, when a full-pitched gun battle broke out between soldiers of two rival drug lords.

The secretary tried to run for cover, but a bullet smashed into her as she fled.

"I felt something pound against my chest like a giant fist," Maria said in an interview. "I knew I had been hit and I looked down expecting to see blood.

"But instead I saw the petals of my beautiful rose scattered all over my blouse. The flower had been hit and the bullet was lying at my feet on the sidewalk. I picked it up and started to cry.

"I was holding a bullet that could have ended my life, but I was alive and safe. I knew the hand of God had turned death away from me."

Maria was taken to a hospital, where doctors treated her for a bad bruise and skin abrasions, then released her.

And her fiance says he's awed that his gift of love became a gift of life.

"She's the most precious person in the world to me," said grateful Alberto.

"I feel unbelievably lucky that my rose saved her life."

MARIA picked up the bullet, right, that smashed into her flower's tightly furled petals.

LUCKY Maria Delponte had just finished having lunch with her fiance Alberto Vasquez, right, when the gunfight broke out.

BIGFOOT BABY CAN TALK!

A Bigfoot baby captured in China in 1989 is learning to talk and anthropologists say it is only a matter of time before the hairy 3-year-old will be ready to attend kindergarten — in a school with ordinary kids!

By SALLY CARRUBBA
Special correspondent

"This boy may not be human but he's close enough to study in a classroom," Dr. Jan Brader said in a letter to the prestigious European science journal Evolution Today.

"We have had him in captivity for a little over three years now and he has responded beyond our wildest dreams. He relates to humans extremely well and even though he isn't as smart as a human child, he is intellectually functional, with an IQ in the 65 to 70 range.

"You don't have to be a genius to excel in a classroom, of course, and because this Bigfoot is mastering human speech, he deserves the chance to learn and grow in a structured academic environment.

"This is particularly important because he has been removed from his natural habitat and will never have contact with his own kind."

As Weekly World News and other major media previously reported, Dr. Brader captured the baby Bigfoot after his hairy, 8-foot mother abandoned him near Cangyuan in the southwest area of the country in September 1989.

With the permission of Chinese authorities, the Dutch researcher took the creature to an anthropology research facility in Amsterdam for further study.

And even though he was unsure whether the Bigfoot would adjust to life in captivity, the infant thrived on human companionship.

"The Bigfoot was just a few weeks old when we found him and that was a big plus," Dr. Brader said. "All he really needed was the tender loving care that we were able to provide with the help of a series of surrogate mothers.

"We had hoped to put him in a day-care situation when he was much younger, but he was too big, strong and unpredictable to interact with human children. In the past year or so, however, he has matured considerably.

"And the fact that he has begun to speak tells me that he will be ready to start kindergarten, possibly by the end of summer."

Dr. Brader estimates the Bigfoot — who already stands 5 feet tall and weighs 110 pounds — has a vocabulary of 40 to 50 words. But like most 3-year-olds, he speaks in short, often fragmented, sentences like, "Me potty" or "Ball fall."

He also shows a relatively strong aptitude for mathematics, Dr. Brader said.

"The Bigfoot will never be a genius, but there is a strong possibility that he can become a valuable and functioning member of human society," the anthropologist said.

"If and when that happens, he will become the first non-human in history to have a say in the affairs of men."

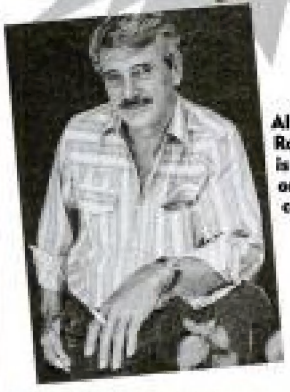
AIDS trading cards are hot!



AIDS celeb Rock Hudson is featured on a trading card.

Collectors' items feature celebrities who contracted the killer disease!

Collectors across America are snapping up a bizarre new series of AIDS trading cards — that come with a free condom!

For as little as $1, trading card enthusiasts can buy a pack of 12 cards bearing pictures of celebrity AIDS sufferers like Rock Hudson and Magic Johnson.

The back of each card gives information about the featured AIDS sufferer, including career highlights and contributions toward the AIDS fight.

"These people are celebrities who are either HIV positive, have AIDS or have already died of AIDS," said Catherine Yronwode, editor-in-chief of the California company that publishes the cards.

"We don't have to get their permission. These are people in the news. This is a journalistic venture."

The entire AIDS Awareness series numbers 110 cards, half featuring famous AIDS sufferers and half providing information about the deadly disease.

Some cards provide medical information, including telltale symptoms, and others chronicle the fight against AIDS, efforts to combat the disease — and even information on other sexually transmitted diseases, such as syphilis and gonorrhea.

Miss Yronwode admits that a few of the celebrities featured on her AIDS cards have contacted her asking to be removed from the set, but she has refused their requests. She says the cards, which can be purchased at comic book stores around the country, help educate the public and may have a real value to collectors within a short time.

Subway rider doused with gasoline and set on fire!

Heartless teenagers doused a sleeping man with gasoline and set him on fire, cops say — then stuck around and laughed as he went up in flames!

The hoodlums invaded a nearly empty New York City subway car and found Lucindo Beltrez, 37, asleep in a mable liquid on Beltrez and lit it with a match. One of the thugs said, "Look, look he's still asleep," as flames shot up the man's legs.

Beltrez said he awoke to find himself engulfed in flames. He PUCKER UP! Ruth LaBarge rewards her dog Farren with a kiss.

By DICK DONOVAN / Staff writer

Pooch pulls 1,200-lb. sled 16 feet & earns a smooch!

A burly pooch named Farren donned her logger's cap for a kiss on the chops from her happy owner — as a reward for pulling a whopping 1,200-pound sled 16 feet!

"It was a good pull, but she didn't even win her class," owner Ruth LaBarge admitted with a laugh.

"She's only 85 pounds, though, and she did the best she could. I wanted her to know that I really appreciated her effort."

Farren was just one of scores of dogs that put their muscles on the line at a pulling contest staged recently in Bear Lake, Minn., near Minneapolis.

"The pulling contests are a lot of fun for the dogs as well as the owners," Ruth said in an interview at her home in Chisholm.

"But it's also an opportunity to let people see how really sweet and gentle a pit bull can be . . . that they're not just the vicious dogs they hear about that rip out children's throats.

"Farren is just about the sweetest dog a person could want. She doesn't have a mean bone in her body."

Ruth also had her undefeated Irish wolfhound Beaver entered in the competition and, as usual, the 193-pound brute took top honors, this time with a pull just a tad under 3,000 pounds!

SPACE ALIENS KILLING ALABAMA CATTLE

. . . and draining their blood!

CATTLE were found with throats and chests slit open.

By JULIA McKNIGHT / Staff writer

Terrified farmers in northeast Alabama say something is mutilating their cattle and draining their blood — and they're convinced the slaughter is the work of aliens from outer space!

Police confirm that dozens of citizens have sighted eerie, low-flying UFOs over the farms where the killings occurred — often just hours before the cattle were found with their throats and chests slit open and their sex organs sliced off.

"You can't tell me something stranger than life isn't happening here," said Albertville Police Detective Tommy Cole after discovering the mutilated carcass of his own prize 950-pound steer.

"There wasn't a trace of blood. The flesh was chalky white. The straight line cuts were as sharp as a razor's edge.

"No way this could have been done by predators. And I can't explain why there were no tracks leading to the carcass, about 350 yards from the closest road."

Det. Cole said his steer is one of more than a dozen cattle found mutilated so far — without a drop of blood in the animals reacted "wildly" to the craft.

Ogletree tried to discuss the sightings with military officials but said he got nowhere.

"Getting information out of the military is like pulling teeth from a chicken," he said.

Det. Cole said tissue samples from eight of the slaughtered cattle have been sent to state veterinarians and their investigation is continuing.

"We aren't the only state experiencing these bizarre mutilations," the detective said. He said farmers have reported similar incidents in Pennsylvania, Colorado, Texas and Arizona.

"People in these parts are terrified," Commander Ogletree said. "They keep two things loaded — their cameras and their guns."

Police Post Commander Ron Ogletree. "I believe these people saw what they reported."

Everyone described seeing a craft with bright moving lights that hovered just below the treetops before zipping out of sight.

The witnesses all sensed a strange humming vibration, although none heard a sound. Everyone who had pets said discovery, dozens of the policeman's neighbors reported seeing a spaceship hovering above their homes. And similar sightings have been reported ever since the mutilations began.

"These are honest, southern, country folk," said State

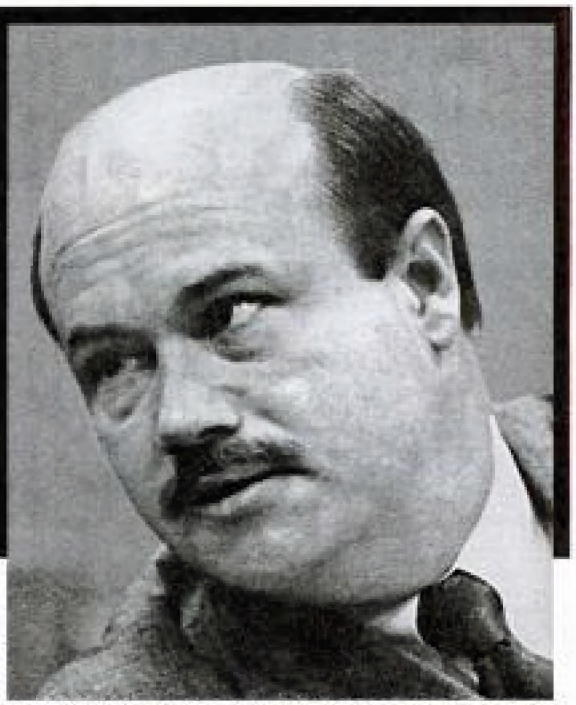
Rapist gets off easy — because he was polite!



HOTSHOT lawyer, Timothy Hensick, was sentenced to just 18 months in jail for raping a female client.

By DICK DONOVAN / Staff writer

In an outrageous case of justice gone mad, a judge gave a mere slap on the wrist to a big-shot attorney convicted of rape — because the creep helped his victim to her feet after he attacked her!

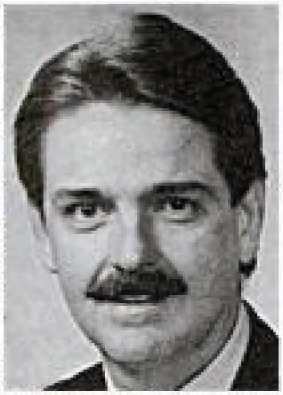
Circuit Court Judge Michael Hocking sentenced lawyer Timothy Hensick to just 18 months in jail for raping a female client — ignoring the sentencing guidelines that called for a term of 10 to 25 years in prison.

Hensick is the son of a former Circuit Court judge and was president of the school board in little Howell, Mich., at the time of his arrest.

But Judge Hocking claims he handed down the minimum sentence not because Hensick is a prominent lawyer — but because he didn't yell or raise his voice during the attack and because he helped his victim up when he was finished with her.

The lawyer was arrested in 1991 for raping the mother of an 11-year-old boy after he went to her home on the pretext of doing business.

A jury convicted him, but bighearted Judge Hocking sentenced him to just 18 months — then ordered that he get a new trial. The prosecution is appealing that order.



JUDGE Michael Hocking ignored sentencing guidelines.

He helped his victim up when he was finished with her, says judge brother were classmates in law school," said Bonnie Miller, an attorney and board member of SARA, a county-wide sex abuse recovery center based in Howell.

In spite of his alleged association with the defendant's brother, Hocking — a judge in nearby Eaton County — agreed to try the case when Livingston County judges disqualified themselves because of their association with Hensick or his family.

SARA and LACASA, a sister agency, have filed a complaint against Judge Hocking with the Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission, accusing him of "outrageously blatant and offensive conduct."

"We reviewed the official court video of the trial and it shows the judge's sexual bias was clearly evident during the trial," Miss Miller said.

"We received various threats from people who warned that (SARA-LACASA) would lose its funding if we filed the complaint. But we reviewed everything, discussed it thoroughly and decided to go ahead with it anyway."

Hensick was sentenced in November 1991 and has remained free on appeal. Finally, after a year-long delay, Judge Hocking granted him a new trial.

Miss Miller believes that the judge delayed ruling on the new trial in the belief that with the passing of time, the victim will not want to endure the anguish of another trial and the case will be dropped.

"I don't think there's any doubt about it," she said.

SACRED MAGIC

THE SACRED MAGIC

As a youngster, William Alexander Oribello constantly asked questions about the mysteries of life and the Almighty Power of God. His parents and the family's minister answered his probing questions the best they could, but their answers were lacking until one day when little William was touched by the thunderous power of the Lord. A beautiful light surrounded him and he was given a divine message that he had been selected to receive and teach the most powerful lost secrets of THE SACRED MAGIC to all the world at the dawn of the GOLDEN AGE.

THE SACRED MAGIC is the essence of the mystic teachings given by the Magi and the Masters of Wisdom to Rev. Oribello. To determine if you have been so CHOSEN to receive this hidden knowledge, answer the following questions truthfully to yourself:

❑ Do I want peace, joy, love and prosperity to fill my life completely?

❑ Do I desire to know and work with the unseen forces of the universe for dynamic success in all that I do?

❑ Do I want total control of all situations which manifest in my life?

❑ Do I possess an unrelenting need to know the answers to the mysteries of life, death, and the workings of the universe, both quickly and easily?

If you can answer "YES" to a majority of these questions then this is obviously the path for you....Here is a mere sample of what you can expect to learn from Rev. Oribello's SACRED MAGIC manuscript:

SEVEN GREAT MONEY SECRETS

Elephant knocks train off tracks — after her baby is hit by a locomotive!

VENGEFUL mama elephant bellowed in triumph!

DHAKA, Bangladesh — An enraged elephant knocked a passing train off the tracks and battered the locomotive into a heap of mangled steel — in an act of revenge after her baby was struck down by an earlier train!

The elephant sauntered away unhurt after the attack, which left almost 200 passengers stranded for more than a day in the wilds 65 miles southwest of here.

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

"I have never witnessed such an incredible sight in all my life," said Raji Singh, chief conductor on the train that makes twice-weekly runs between Dhaka and Calcutta, India.

"I would never have imagined that a gentle creature like an elephant could become so violent it would knock a train off the tracks and then ram it until it was no more than junk.

"But her baby had been hurt by the train and could easily have been killed. Everyone knows an elephant never forgets. She knew the train would be back and then she'd get her revenge."

The incident began three days earlier when an elephant calf wandered onto the tracks and was struck by a passing train, leaving the baby dazed but not seriously hurt.

Wire service reports said the calf's outraged mom waited patiently beside the tracks until the next train rumbled by.

"As the train approached, the elephant moved onto the tracks " said Shad Punjani, a worker at a nearby construction site.

"The engineer blew the whistle several times, but the elephant refused to move. Finally, the train had to stop to avoid hitting the beast.

"As soon as the train stopped, the elephant moved to the side, lowered her head and pushed the engine off the tracks. It just rolled over like some huge dead whale.

"The elephant rammed the engine over and over and over, until it was nothing but a pile of broken steel. Then she turned and ambled off.

"When she was about a hundred yards away, she raised her trunk and bellowed in triumph. Then her baby emerged from the brush and the two of them strolled out of sight."

Drew Barrymore's white-trash diet!

Drew Barrymore, last seen on TV as the Long Island Lolita, Amy Fisher, doesn't care what she eats.

"I love white-trash food," she says. "SpaghettiOs. Macaroni and cheese. Chef Boyardee is my hero. I have a Diet-Rite cola for breakfast every morning." And Drew loves cars and guns, too.

"I drive a Bronco, and I always have a gun with me," says Drew. "A Ruger SP101, .357 Magnum. I'm really into guns, ya know. My boyfriend Jamie is into cars. He has an old Chevy Super Sport. Yeah, I'd stand in front of him if someone was going to shoot him."

Drew's mom, Jaid, puts her 18-year-old daughter's philosophy of life this way: "Drew is clear about what she wants.

"And nobody tells her what to do — ever."

Other stars in the crunch bunch: Maria Shriver and Demi Moore, 2,500 crunches per week, and Lisa Hartman Black and Shannen Doherty, 1,250 crunches per.

JFK+MM+RFK = NEW FBI COVER-UP?

The real bombshell in the new bio of J. Edgar Hoover is the cover-up of the Kennedy brothers' involvement in the life and death of sex queen Marilyn Monroe, says conservative columnist William F. Buckley.

"The FBI was constantly accumulating evidence of JFK's sexual escapades, and now Bobby's," writes Buckley, who believes that there's plenty of evidence — enough to warrant some kind of congressional inquiry.

"A mass of testimony suggests that ugly showdown with Monroe. The row drove Monroe to hysteria, and her psychiatrist, Dr. Ralph Greenson, had to be called. Years later, he confirmed that RFK was also present the night the star died. To complicate matters, a piece of paper found in Monroe's bedclothes bore a White House phone number.

"What one wonders is: Where are the big publishers, moviemakers, historians? Why don't they do a genuine investigation into the Monroe case?" asks Buckley.

Happy Days, the sitcom, is in syndication sunset, but the force of the Fonz rolls on. Henry Winkler, aka Arthur Fonzarelli, says an autistic girl spoke her first word when she recognized him and the word, of course, was "Fonz!"

"I saw her a year later and she had added 101 words to her vocabulary," says Winkler proudly.

FONZIE sparks a miracle.

But sometimes the force can get out of hand.

Because of a Happy Days episode in which Fonzie stood up for American Indians, Winkler became one of four men since 1910 allowed to take a picture of Hopi Indians, who happen to believe that cameras steal their souls.

EASY WAYS TO BEAT THE BLUES!

Most people battle the blues by spending time with their friends or listening to their favorite music, a new study shows.

"People get a sense of comfort when someone else is present to share their feelings," said psychiatrist Dr. Paul Horton. "And music gives them an 'up' feeling, as well as a sense of security."

Here, according to Dr. Horton, are seven more ways to fight grief, loneliness or depression, beginning with the most popular:

● Watching TV. "It's an activity that takes your mind off your problems. Instead, you can focus on the problems of the TV characters."

● Eating. "This can be both physically and psychologically gratifying. A tasty snack can make you feel good physically and eating a favorite food can cheer you psychologically."

● Reading. Like watching TV, reading gets your mind off your troubles because you become preoccupied with what you're reading.

● Talking to yourself. "Most people talk to themselves. It's not a symptom of mental illness, and it can be an effective way of giving yourself solace." Often people can reassure themselves simply by giving themselves a pep talk, Dr. Horton says.

● Prayer. For many people, prayer is a powerful source of comfort and often brings peace of mind.

● Remembering pleasant memories. Thinking about positive events in the past helps comfort people suffering grief, anxiety or stress. "Recalling your first date with your spouse, for example, can make you feel good during painful times."

● Going for a walk. "It's a restful physical activity that allows the mind free play," Dr Horton said.

BOY FALLS OFF BRIDGE ONTO SPEEDING TRAIN

. . . and survives!

An 8-year-old boy toppled from an overpass, landed on the locomotive of a speeding freight train and clung there for 13 gut-wrenching hours before his ride of terror finally ended — 600 miles away!

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Correspondent

Hungry, thirsty and suffering from windburn and exposure, little Luis Cardenas was found holding on with all his might to the top of the huge diesel engine when it stopped at the U.S.-Mexican border.

"I heard a soft whimpering sound, but I couldn't figure out where it was coming from at first," recalled Miguel Lagos, a federal officer assigned to the switchyards at Ciudad Juarez, on the Mexican side of the border.

"I looked in and under the cars but found nothing. Finally I climbed up on the engine and the whimpering was much louder.

"I got up on top of the engine, and that's when I saw the boy. I called for an ambulance on my radio and when it arrived, the medics had to pry the boy's fingers from the rods he had gripped for so many hours.

"Having something to hold onto is what saved his life — that and the boy's incredible courage."

Incredibly, little Luis came through his ordeal with nothing but cuts, bruises and a broken finger, and he was ready to leave the hospital when his parents arrived to take him back to their home in Durango.

"I didn't think I would ever see my mommy and daddy again," Luis told Weekly World News.

"I was playing on the bridge with my brother Ramon and I fell off the railing.

"When I landed on the train, I reached for something to hold onto.

"I grabbed something and squeezed really hard so I wouldn't fall off. But when the train went fast, the wind kept trying to blow me away.

"I prayed real hard. I was so scared.

"I couldn't open my eyes because the bugs were stinging my face. I hung on for a long time, but I couldn't have done it much longer. I was really tired.

"But God heard my prayers like my mommy always said He would. And He kept me safe until the train stopped."

◁ KID COURAGE: Luis Cardenas came through his ordeal with nothing but cuts, bruises and a broken finger.

SAFELY back home in Durango, Luis points to the bridge he fell off while he was playing with his brother.

CRAZY LAWS FOR WOMEN ONLY!

A wacky Oxford, Ohio, law once made it illegal for a woman to undress in front of a photo of a man. Women in Owensboro, Ky., couldn't buy a hat unless their husbands tried it on first. And in Oklahoma, until 1984, a wife was legally the property of her husband!

These are just a few of the loony laws applying to women that were once on the books, according to the National Women's Political Caucus. Here are some other daffy laws:

- In Kentucky, a woman couldn't walk along a road in a bathing suit unless she was with at least two police officers — or armed with a club!
- San Francisco women were not allowed to spray their laundry by squirting water from their mouths.
- New York City prohibited women from smoking cigarettes in public — and one lady who broke the law in 1904 was actually thrown in jail.
- In some states, an unescorted female could be refused a meal at a restaurant or a room at a hotel.
- Until 1882, a husband owned the clothing and jewelry he gave to his wife.
- And back in George Washington's day, a man could legally beat his wife with a stick — as long as it was no thicker than his thumb.

Stop wasting tax $$$ on egghead scientists' stupid experiments!

PRESIDENT RODHAM needs to learn not to throw away your money — so cut out the note below and send it to her!

WE SUPPORT ED!

Dear President Rodham,

Stop giving our hard-earned money to wacky professors and scientists who have been wasting it on their own goofy hobbies. Make these eggheads get a real job — and pay some taxes of their own!

Here's what we should spend our tax money for:

MY AMERICA By ED ANGER

President Hillary Rodham
1600 Pennsylvania Ave. NW
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear President Rodham,

I'm madder than a senator with an exploding cigar over all the whining and crying about how hard it is to get rid of the nation's deficit. Follow my advice and the whole thing will be paid off by next week, for crying out loud.

All we have to do is stop wasting hard-earned tax dollars on all those stupid projects that eggheads, government scientists and nutty professors dream up.

Let's face it, the people elected you and hubby Bill to run the country for the next four years and you've got to know the people of America work too damn hard for our money to have it spent on knucklehead projects like:

- $917,100 to learn if Chinese people think all Americans look alike.
- $771,000 to find out if blonde or dark-haired kindergarten kids learn the alphabet faster.
- $921,743 to find out if most criminals didn't get enough Christmas presents when they were babies.
- $1,451,200 for nitwit professors to turn peanuts into spaghetti.
- $653,100 to find out if it's dangerous to eat a hamburger while you're driving down the highway.
- $211,000 to learn why people don't like going to the doctor's office.
- $422,600 to find out what kind of cheese mice like the best.
- $326,792 for some guy to figure out why women's beauty shops stink so much.
- $1,604,908 to make the IRS more lovable to taxpayers.
- $848,337 to pay for some fancy moviemaker to make a film on the history of the telephone.

Our tax bucks ought to go for helicopters and state-of-the-art combat boots and helmets for our brave boys in our armed forces — and not be thrown away on some fruitcake professor's hobby!

Yours as a TRUE AMERICAN,

Ed Anger

Experts warn: Famine will kill a billion by year 2000!

The world faces a massive famine that could leave a billion people dead of starvation — and it's coming before the end of this decade, experts warn.

The death toll in Somalia will seem like a drop in the bucket compared to the devastation the planet will face by the year 2000 if we don't learn to conserve soil and improve farm output, scientists say.

"Without more action now, 20 years from now we will look back on current food problems as insignificant," said one U.N. scientist.

9 SUPER WORDS GUARANTEED TO GRAB PEOPLE'S ATTENTION!

By SANDRA LEE / Correspondent

You can grab people's attention and make yourself more interesting by working nine "success words" into your conversation, an expert says.

"These words demand attention!" insists marketing expert Donald W. Caudill. Here are the words:

● GUARANTEE — Nobody wants to make a mistake, so your guarantee becomes their safety net — and encourages them to hear more of what you have to say.

● EASY — Nobody wants things to be more difficult. Tell people that what you're saying is easy to understand or easy to do and they'll automatically listen.

● HEALTH — People are vitally concerned about their physical and psychological well-being. If you tell them you have a healthier way to do something, they'll listen.

● URGENT — Tell someone you have an urgent message and they fear the worst: "Is something wrong with my kids? My wife? My job?" Fear will make them give you their undivided attention.

● YOU — Our favorite topic is none other than ourselves. So if you want to get results, forget about phrases like "Someone needs to clean up the living room" and be more direct with lines like "You need to clean up the living room."

● TODAY — People have already forgotten yesterday and can't do much about tomorrow. But if you tell them something they can do today, you'll have their attention. For example, if you're teaching a person to skate, say, "I'm going to have you flying around on those skates today."

● MONEY — Dollars interest everyone. People want to know how to make them. So one of the most powerful attention-getters is: "This can mean money in your pocket."

● NEW — Find a new way to do anything and people are immediately interested. The word arouses curiosity.

● WIN — Everybody loves winners. More importantly, everyone wants to be a winner. So tell people how to win and you're guaranteed to get their attention.

KING KONG KITTY!

World's biggest cat tips scales at 78 pounds!

GIGANTIC kittycat Fluffy is almost too big for her loving owner Marybelle Bresk to hold.

By BEATRICE DEXTER / Correspondent

A tubby tabby named Fluffy is the world's biggest cat, a whiskered whopper who tips the scales at an incredible 78 pounds!

The titanic tomcat is so big he has to be carried everywhere he goes — because his giant 38-inch belly bangs on the ground whenever he tries to walk.

"I don't let him sit on my lap anymore because he cuts off the circulation in my legs," says the big kitty's owner, Marybelle Bresk, 31. "And I don't pick him up any more than I have to because he's so big I can't get a good grip on him."

Fluffy weighs an amazing 27 pounds more than the world famous Tiddles, a 51-pound British cat who until recently was thought to be the world's biggest.

"The vet says Fluffy's in excellent shape for a cat of his size. He sure seems healthy, judging by his appetite.

"He eats everything in sight and he's always yowling for more. I just can't seem to keep him filled up."

Gigantic pussycat weighs as much as an 11-yr.-old boy!

Long-haired Fluffy was born in 1989, the only kitten in his litter. By the time he was six months old, he was twice the normal size for a cat his age and getting bigger by the day.

Before he was a year old, the colossal kitty was downing 13 cans of tuna and a gallon of cream a day!

"I think he got used to eating a lot when he was the only kitten his mama had and now it's just a habit with him," Marybelle said. "For him, eating is security.

"Fluffy just has to have his jaws moving all the time. Whenever I leave anything out by mistake, he'll grab it if he can. He eats the dog's food.

"He even ate a box of chocolates I got for Valentine's Day. He's just one big feline food processor."

The Danville, Conn., divorcee says she's pained to see her pet on a diet — deprived of his favorite foods. And she can't get him to exercise because every movement is such a chore for him.

So the mountainous mouser spends most of his time snoozing on the sofa.

And Marybelle says she's finally given up trying to get the big guy to slim down because she figures she's got the makings of a celebrity on her hands.

Last month the proud lady wrote to the Guinness Book of Records about Fluffy, and she's hoping they'll crown him the world's fattest cat.

"My Fluffy is going to be world famous," Marybelle insists. "He's just so gorgeous, so big and furry. It costs me a

YOUR FINGERNAILS REVEAL Your Personality

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

As your eyes are windows into your soul, your fingernails can provide pointers to your personality!

SCIENTIFIC GUIDE TO YOUR TRUE SELF-PROFILE!

In an exciting study recently completed, 8,000 men and women were examined by doctors and given psychological tests. The combined results, as interpreted and published by French dermatologist Rene Cunliffe, give us a fascinating look at the 10 fingernail shapes and what they mean.

"Palm readers have observed hands for centuries and come up with amazingly accurate personality profiles," Dr. Cunliffe notes.

"But this is the first time a study has combined physical indications of fingernail shape with scientifically accepted personality tests."

Dr. Cunliffe's research confirms what palm readers have known for years, says Madame Eva Kazcmarek, a fourth-generation palm reader.

"His observations are no surprise," she says. "What does surprise me is that doctors are finally admitting our craft is not mumbo-jumbo."

Examine your fingernails carefully and compare them to the shapes on the chart below. Then use the number on the chart to see what your hands reveal in the descriptions below.

1. Fat nails are often seen on go-getters who crave physical activity. If this is your shape, you're also decisive, sometimes to the point of being obstinate. Try and see others' point of view.

2. Your square or rectangular nails are a sign of a person who has high standards — and demands the same from those around them. You are even tempered, calm and may be wary of change. Expect a long, long life.

3. If your nails are wide, you have a quick temper but find it easy to forgive and forget. Strong as an ox and almost always healthy, you laugh at the flu season. You are very kind. You're also an irresistible lover.

4. Your narrow nails are dainty and somewhat fragile, just like you. But what you lack in brute strength you make up for with supercharged energy. You have great wit and are very creative. You can achieve any goal.

5. If you were born with shell-shaped fingernails, you have a sensitive nature. You are loyal and trustworthy. A natural leader, you're an inspiration to others during tough times.

6. No matter what life throws at you, if your nails are tapered like talons, you'll come out on top. Some people may find your manner cold, so try a warmer approach. Your friends think you're solid gold. You have a superior IQ and psychic abilities.

7. Graceful almond-shaped nails are typical of those with an appreciation and love for beauty. You are loyal and honest, and look for these qualities in others. It takes a lot to get you angry. Members of the opposite sex are attracted to your strong personality.

8. If your nails are shaped like footballs, you may have trouble getting out of bed in the morning. But that's just part of your easygoing temperament. Try getting more exercise to boost your energy level. You are very creative.

9. Nails curved like spoons may signal circulation or glandular conditions or a nutritional deficiency. A medical examination is in order. Your kooky moods may be caused by a chemical imbalance.

10. Rounded nails that curve over are a sign of an illness, and may indicate heart or respiratory conditions. Known as the Hippocratic nail,

Dear Disappointed Guy in Somerset: Now you know why they call her "stretch!"

Dear Cowboy in San Bernardino: I can't think of one good reason to brand your girlfriend.

Dear Pushing 40 in St. Petersburg: If you're so macho, why are you dating a 13-year-old girl?

Dear Sensuous in Oakley: You could break your neck pulling a stunt like that!

Dear Tiny Guy in Hartford: In this case, the best things DON'T come in small packages!

Dear Fuming in Hartford: If the problem is that bad, stop eating beans!

Dear Rejected in Taylorsville: I'd like to help — but I'm not in the mood!

Dear Dotti: My boyfriend is the kindest, most loving and sincere man I've ever met. He treats me well and I love him madly but he's ugly as sin and I'm embarrassed to go out in public with him.

I'm confused, Dotti. Is it possible for someone to love a person but not be physically attracted to him? That's the way I feel but somehow it doesn't make sense. — Unsure in Greensburg

Dear Unsure: Don't be a pinhead! If you really loved this man, you'd be attracted to him mentally AND physically. Since you aren't, you ought to do yourself and him a favor and get yourself a new man. Either that or put a bag over his head!

How can I get my lazy son off his duff?

Dear Dotti: My 18-year-old son just graduated from high school and he doesn't have any plans for the future. He's a smart boy but he refuses to go to college. In fact, all he wants to do is drive a delivery truck for minimum wage and read comic books. He's living at home to boot. What can I do, Dotti? — Concerned Mom in Scranton

Dear Concerned: Your son has obviously made a decision to go to the school of hard knocks and the only thing you can do is wish him luck — after you kick him the hell out of your house!

What do you bring to a cheapskate's wedding?

Dear Dotti: A friend of mine is getting married in a few months and he's planning a very small, intimate wedding. He's already made it clear to his friends that he expects nice gifts. But he's such a cheapskate that he's not going to have a reception. Should I be obliged to come up with a gift and card for such a stingy person? — J.O. in Detroit

Dear J.O.: If your pal won't spring for a reception, you certainly don't owe him a gift. As far as I'm concerned a wedding is give AND take!

My hell-on-wheels boss is driving me to welfare!

Dear Dotti: Are all bosses as obnoxious, arbitrary and cheap as mine? It seems like the harder I work the less respect and money I get. Sometimes I feel like giving up and going on welfare. — Wondering in Jacksonville

Dear Wondering: I can't speak for all bosses but I can tell you about mine. He's smart, fair, compassionate and tosses out raises like they were confetti. If I were you, I'd find a new job and boss. You obviously deserve better!

Beau's mystery scratches look just like hickeys!

Dear Dotti: My boyfriend was out all night last night and came home with what I say are hickeys all over his neck. He swears they're cat scratches. Should I believe him? — Suspicious in Omaha

Dear Suspicious: Absolutely not! He's been fooling around!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Ask Serena

Where did mom hide her diamonds and gold?

Dear Serena: My beloved mother died a few months ago and left no will. She did leave behind a short note that said she had hidden over $100,000 in diamonds and gold that my family has passed down generation to generation for the past 200 years.

Unfortunately, she died before she finished the note. I don't know where to look for the treasure. Can you help? — Anxious in Atlanta

Dear Anxious: The diamonds and gold are buried under the old oak tree in the northwest corner of your mother's backyard. A football-size chunk of milky quartz marks the exact spot!

"I and some of the other more fortunate crew members managed to transfer ourselves through vaporization into the bodies of people here on Earth," he said. "I recall the day very vividly — June 18, 1946."

Simple tips to handle . . .

The 6 most embarrassing situations!

You can handle the six most embarrassing situations you're ever likely to face by following some simple tips from an expert.

Here are the situations — and what psychologist Dr. Marc Lipton says you should do to get through them:

● You're confronted after saying something nasty behind someone's back.

"Don't deny what you've said. If you do, you may never be trusted again — or it may cost you a friendship," Dr. Lipton advised. "Admit your indiscretion by saying, 'I'm sorry I said what I did and I'm doubly sorry you heard about it.' "

● You've made a promise you can't keep — or have completely forgotten about.

"Say, 'I over-committed myself' or 'I forgot and I'm terribly sorry I inconvenienced you,' " Dr. Lipton said.

Assure the person that you did not intentionally mean to displease him and you value his friendship.

● You get caught in a white lie.

"The best way to handle the situation is to say, 'You caught me. I goofed.' If you try to explain why you lied, you'll get stuck in a no-win conversation. Simply admit you lied, then keep quiet."

● You do something wine on your hostess' tablecloth or knock over a valuable knickknack. After you have been clumsy, do what you can to correct any damage. Offer to repair or replace a damaged item or clean up a mess. Then change the subject.

"Don't ruin an occasion by making a big deal of your clumsiness," the psychologist said.

● You're embarrassed by someone else's bad behavior.

"It can be embarrassing when your spouse, child or friend says something vulgar, acts up or behaves abrasively in public.

"Minimize your embarrassment by deciding how you are going to 'talk' to them in private. Don't increase your embarrassment by making a scene in public."

● You don't understand what other people are talking about.

"It can be embarrassing to be uninformed about a subject others are discussing — or when everyone's laughing at a joke you didn't get.

"The next time that you miss the point of a joke or cannot get a handle on what

DOLPHINS DELIVER DROWNING MOM'S BABY!

GRATEFUL MOM Alena Gonzalez says her daughter would have died if it hadn't been for a school of loving dolphins.

An expectant mom went into labor while struggling to keep her head above water after her husband's boat sank in the Caribbean Sea. But she managed to bring her baby safely into the world — with the help of a school of dolphins!

By TONY CASSIDY
Correspondent

"My little girl would have drowned if those blessed dolphins hadn't come to me when they did," said mother of four Alena Gonzalez, 31, after a Panamanian freighter rescued her from the sea.

"The dolphins supported me in the water so I wouldn't drown when the contractions became so intense I could barely stay afloat. They were amazing — almost human.

"I know what happened should not be possible and yet it happened. I know they were sent to me by the Holy Father. He wanted my baby to live."

Alena and her husband Ramon, who live in Cardenas, Cuba, were fishing on the Cay Sal bank 60 miles off the Florida Keys when their 28-foot boat struck a submerged log and sank.

"I was wearing a life jacket, but I was so big it could barely keep me afloat," Alena recalled. "I didn't see Ramon in the water and I started to cry because I thought he was dead. I didn't learn until later that he had survived."

Alena said she'd drifted in the water for about two hours when she suddenly went into labor. The first twinge of pain sent an icy wave of terror through her body.

"All I could think of was that my baby was going to drown and I could do nothing to prevent it," she said.

"I was on the verge of panic when I realized that I was surrounded by a school of dolphins. They seemed so happy. They were chattering and nudging me so that I was able to float on my back. Just having them there was very reassuring.

'I know they were sent to me by the Holy Father'

"Then two very big dolphins got on each side of me so I could brace myself to push my baby out. They seemed to know what help I needed. It was like having a dozen midwives helping deliver my baby.

"And when she was born, the dolphins went wild. They bobbed up and down and chattered like little children. And they had the most beautiful smiles on their faces. It made me happy just to see them so happy.

"I lifted my baby to my breast to keep it warm and as I cuddled her in my arms, two of the dolphins got under me and raised me so that I was actually out of the water.

"And all of them working together managed to keep me and the baby safely out of the water for nearly an hour.

"Then suddenly I heard a voice calling out to me and when I looked around there was a small boat only a few feet away.

"Behind it, I saw a large freighter. That's when I knew everything would be okay and that my baby would be safe.

"Two days later, I was home with Ramon. He had been rescued by a Bahamian fisherman who took him to Havana."

In gratitude to the gentle creatures of the sea, Alena and Ramon named their new daughter Dolphina Maria.

But wildlife experts say they aren't surprised that sympathetic dolphins rushed in to assist mother and baby in their time of need.

One dolphin trainer cited a unique program in Israel where pregnant women swim with dolphins to experience the calming effect and joyous feeling the gentle mammals transmit not only to the expectant mothers but to their unborn babies as well.

Middle-age men who avoid yo-yo diets and keep their weight steady are less likely to suffer heart attacks — even if they are overweight, a new study shows.

People should stop trying to reach an ideal weight and lose enexpect to keep off, the American Heart Association now advises.

DOC SAVES MAN'S LIFE WITH LIVER HE FOUND ON HIGHWAY!

BIZARRE SCENE: A truck hauling human livers flipped over and dumped its cargo across this highway in Caracas, Venezuela.

By CLINT BACON
Special correspondent

Enrique Gonzalez is alive and well today because doctors removed his liver — and replaced it with a liver found lying on the highway!

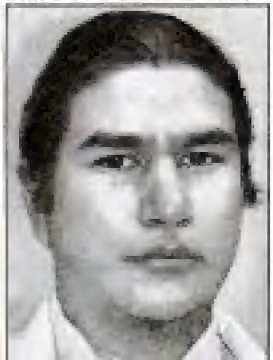
"I tell people that my liver came from heaven and in a way, it did," said the 53-year-old Caracas, Venezuela, man.

"If my doctor hadn't been in the right place at the right time, if he hadn't had the guts to get out there on the highway and pick up a bloody liver, I wouldn't be alive right now."

The mind-numbing medical drama began when Dr. Ricardo Mendes got stuck in traffic after a truck hauling human livers to a medical school blew a tire and flipped — spilling its revolting cargo across three lanes of highway.

'It was a gift from God,' says grateful patient

LUCKY Enrique Gonzalez is healthy as a horse.



QUICK-THINKING Dr. Ricardo Mendes gave his patient

As workers toiled to clear the roadway, Dr. Mendes jumped out of his car and snatched up a liver before it could dry out in the sun. He put the organ in a small cooler he keeps in the trunk of his car and sped to the hospital, where Gonzalez was on the brink of death with a failing liver.

"I realized that what I was doing was unorthodox, but Mr. Gonzalez had been waiting on a donor list for months and was running out of time," the doctor said.

"After I got to the hospital, I raced to his room and asked if he was willing to take a big risk on the chance that it might save his life.

"He said he was ready to try anything, so I reserved an operating room and wheeled him into surgery within the hour. The liver I picked up on the highway wasn't in the best condition, of course, but it was all I had.

"When we finished the operation, we were hoping against hope that Mr. Gonzalez would live long enough for us to get a fresher liver from another source.

"But as the hours turned into days, and the days turned into weeks, it became clear that the liver was working and the operation was a success. That was over a year ago and Mr. Gonzalez is now as healthy as a horse.

"There isn't a doubt in my mind that he will lead a long and rewarding life with the liver I found on the road."

An account of the drama in a medical journal said the livers that fell on the highway were not considered suitable for transplants because the patients they were taken from had suffered from long and debilitating illnesses.

The chances of the doctor finding one that would save a man's life "are not only beyond calculation, they border on the miraculous," the report said.

Gonzalez added: "My liver was a gift from God. He's why I am alive. If He hadn't caused that wreck, I would

HOOKER'S SHOCKING CONFESSION:

I gave AIDS to thousands of men!

By JACK ALEXANDER / Staff writer

A young hooker who didn't know she had the deadly AIDS virus until it was too late believes she has infected countless thousands of people over the past two years!

"This woman may have started her very own sexual holocaust," said a government official in Israel, where — until now — AIDS has claimed few victims.

Pretty prostitute Rachel Nissani, 23, told the Jerusalem newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth she was tested for AIDS in January 1991 but never bothered to find out the results of the test, which showed she was carrying the AIDS virus.

Rachel had taken the AIDS test as a requirement for entering a drug rehabilitation program.

But she returned to drugs and forgot all about the test, she said.

In the two years since, the streetwalker's had sex with at least six men a day to finance a heroin habit — exposing all those men and their sex partners to the killer virus.

The hooked harlot was tested for AIDS again early this year during another attempt to get off heroin and was told she carried the virus.

Then Rachel checked into the results of the test she took two years ago — and found out she had been carrying the virus the whole time.

"I cried. I was in shock to think that I may be responsible for infecting all those people," she said.

Ichilov Hospital, where Rachel took the original test, tried to reach her two years ago to give her the bad news, but she never showed up at the drug rehab center she gave as an address, Dr. David Goldray said. "The hospital did everything it could to find her," he insisted.

Thus far, only 134 AIDS deaths have been reported in Israel.

Your favorite TV show reveals your personality!

CONTENTED people enjoy the antics of characters like Norm Peterson on Cheers.

Your favorite TV show tells what kind of person you really are, a psychologist says.

Here are the various types of programs and what Dr. Elayne Kahn says they reveal about the people who like them best:

● Comedies like Cheers: You are content with your life and would rather stay home than go out on the town. You try to avoid emotional scenes and often cover your true feelings with your sense of humor.

● Dramas like Sisters: Adventurous and self-confident, you fancy yourself the heroic type who would never ignore another person's cry for help. You enjoy making decisions that affect other peoples' lives.

● Mystery/crime shows like Murder, She Wrote: Extremely curious and competitive, you give the maximum effort in everything you do. You enjoy using your mind while being entertained and get bored with less-demanding TV fare.

● Game shows like Jeopardy!: You love activities that give you a chance to display your intellect. You have little patience with ignorant or stupid people and you appreciate high intelligence.

● Daytime soaps like The Young and The Restless: You enjoy seeing how others handle problems and take cues from soap characters on how to deal with conflicts in your life. You have a strong sense of justice and love it when good triumphs over evil.

● Nighttime soaps like Knots Landing: You daydream about living in the lap of luxury and believe you could handle wealth much better than the tortured souls on these shows.

● Topical talk shows like Oprah: If you're addicted to these shows, you enjoy controversy and have an active, inquisitive mind. You don't like anyone else trying to make up your mind for you — and you want to hear both sides of an issue before reaching a conclusion.

● Entertainment shows like The Tonight Show: If you enjoy the antics of David Letterman or Jay Leno, you like to sit back, put your cares and troubles aside and escape to a harmless diversion. You don't hold grudges because you can see past your conflict with another person to appreciate his or her inner qualities.

● Sports: Competition invigorates you, you work better under pressure, enjoy plotting

COUPLE FLEES HOME IN TERROR — WHEN A PHANTOM MOTORCYCLE GANG ROARS THROUGH THEIR LIVING ROOM!

LUCKY TO be alive! Terrified couple Randall and Marlene Seelings recount their incredible run-in with a ghost motorcycle

RIDERS

By RICK TRACY
Special correspondent

BIZARRE: Seeliegs' townhouse, (arrow) had been rented to bikers, all of whom are now dead.

A terrified young couple fled their home in tears after the place was invaded — by a hell-raising gang of biker ghosts!

"Those bums would roar through our house all night long, whooping and hollering and knocking over furniture with their bikes," recalled construction worker Randall Seeliegs, 34.

"The windows would rattle, the walls would shake and the smell of exhaust fumes would just about knock you over."

Unsuspecting Randall and his wife Marlene came face-to-face with the phantom bikers late last month, just hours after they moved into the modest, two-bedroom townhouse in Nashville, Tenn.

"We woke up about midnight to this loud roar and there they were, racing through the living room like a bunch of maniacs," Randall said.

"There were five of them, and they all had hideous skulls for heads and tattoos on their arms.

"They acted like a typical gang of Hell's Angels, except it was obvious they were real ghosts — because you could see right through them.

"One minute they'd be there and the next minute they'd just disappear into thin air. It was the scariest thing I ever saw in my life."

The couple spent a night-marish weekend in the townhouse, then packed up and moved in with relatives. "We were really looking forward to living in that place, but now we're never going back — and I mean never," sobbed Marlene, 30. "Those ghosts absolutely tore that place apart and if we had stayed one more day, they'd have torn our lives apart, too.

"Why in the hell did they have to pick our house to haunt anyway? I just don't understand it."

But their landlord may have the answer to that question. "I made the mistake of renting the place to a couple of acid-head bikers about three years ago and the first thing I knew all their buddies were living there with them," said the landlord, who asked not to be identified.

"I was trying to figure out how to get them out of there when they solved my problem by getting themselves killed off one by one.

"One of them, O.D.'d on something and another got hit by a garbage truck and the others got bumped off in some kind of fight with a rival gang.

"Ever since then, the neighbors have been complaining about strange noises and weird goings-on in that house, so I guess in a way those bikers never left.

"The minute they moved out, their ghosts moved in."

FLABBERGASTED Randall Seeliegs, above, points to furniture overturned by a ghost biker gang when it roared through their home. Artist's conception shows three of the five ghosts seen by the Seeliegs.

SURGEONS SPLIT TWO-HEADED BABY — RIGHT DOWN THE MIDDLE!

PROUD pops Liam hugs his brave little girl. Four-year-old Eilish is doing well after the miraculous operation, say docs.

BEFORE being split in two, Catherine-Eilish was smothered with love from her parents Mary and Liam Holton.

Miracle child will lead happy, normal life!

By TANYA BRODER / Special correspondent

Adorable little Catherine-Eilish Holton was born with two heads, but surgeons tried to give her a new life — by dividing her right down the middle!

And they almost succeeded in turning one little girl into two healthy, happy kids.

Each head got half a body and seemed to be doing well till little Catherine, 4, died of heart problems four days after the history-making operation.

Now, only Eilish survives. But the girl's grieving parents say they don't regret putting their beloved daughter under the knife, because the surgery offered promise of a better life for their bizarre baby.

"On a bad day you have a lump in your throat talking about Katie," says mother Mary Holton. "The future is what's pulling us through."

Catherine-Eilish was born by cesarean section in 1988 in Donadea, Ireland — a healthy child with two heads, two arms, two hearts, two sets of lungs, two stomachs, three kidneys and two legs.

"I thought, 'My God, how am I going to handle this?'" Mary recalled. "I was terrified.

"I prayed I'd never have to see her and that I'd never have to hold her in my arms. I prayed that if she were still alive, she'd die soon and I'd never have to face the problems. I was horrified at what I was going to have to go her husband Liam had fallen head over heels in love with their special little girl.

The two-headed baby was eagerly accepted by her three sisters and thrived like any other infant.

From the outset, doctors debated the chances of successfully cutting Catherine-Eilish in two, and finally the decision was made to risk the operation.

Surgeons split the little girl's body right down the middle, leaving each side with one head, one arm, half a torso, half a pelvis and one leg.

The two children, Catherine and Eilish, came through the critical surgery in good shape. But four days later, little Catherine's heart failed and she died.

Eilish was so stunned by her sister's death that she didn't speak for weeks. But gradually, she and her family recovered from their heartbreaking loss and began to celebrate Eilish's bright new life.

Now, doctors say that the blonde tyke will soon be walking on her own. She's been fitted with an artificial leg and hip joint and should be on her feet in three months, they say.

The child is energetic, bright and happy and can look forward to a normal life, a fact that convinces the Holtons they made the right decision when they agreed to surgery.

"I believe that Katie wanted us to take the chance," says Liam, a salesman. "She wanted the freedom.

Horrifying affliction is worse than AIDS, say docs!

HO CURE: Once you're infected, there's nothing medical science can do to help.

New 'love disease' makes you break out in blisters — and bleed to death!

Killer AIDS is a walk in the park compared to a horrifying new virus that makes victims break out in blisters and bleed to death — the minute they fall in love!

Nobody knows how many people are infected. But Dr. Kenneth Moore, who is credited with discovering the bizarre virus, says every man, woman and child on the planet could be at risk.

"I don't want to frighten anybody, but until we get a grip on this thing, I advise you to do everything in your power to stay out of love," declared Dr. Moore, who says the "love disease" has claimed the lives of at least 250 victims in 11 countries since it was isolated and identified late last year.

By CLAYTON TEAL
Special correspondent

"Like the AIDS virus, the 'love virus' appears to be quite difficult to catch. But once you've got it there's nothing medical science can do to help.

"What makes the virus so unusual is that it appears to lie dormant until the surge of hormones that accompanies the onset of love triggers it into action," he added.

"Once activated, the bizarre virus takes approximately six months to incubate. At that point the victim breaks out in blisters. Death — and it is an agonizing death — follows within days."

Dr. Moore's report touched off a bitter controversy among researchers, particularly those who have been trying to find a cure for AIDS. Some, like the French virologist Francois Clement, argue that the "love disease" is just another form of AIDS.

But Dr. Moore insists the love virus is in no way related to the HIV virus that causes AIDS.

He cites the fact that HIV is transmitted from one human to another through bodily

It's already killed 250 — and millions more may be at risk!

while the love virus appears to infect people who are not sexually active.

The method of transmission remains unknown. But Dr. Moore believes the virus might be airborne and contracted through the lungs.

"AIDS victims are stigmatized because many of them got the disease by practicing unsafe sex," said the virologist from Cape Town, South Africa.

"But unsafe sexual practices have nothing to do with the love disease.

"Victims become victims merely because they innocently pick up the virus and then fall in love.

tices as innocuous as hugging, kissing and holding hands become as dangerous as having sexual intercourse without a condom because they lead to infatuation and the surge of hormones that trigger the love virus."

U.S. health officials are aware of the virus but say they will not issue a general health alert "until all the data are in."

Meanwhile, Dr. Moore has issued his own alert — and warns people to take the love disease as seriously as they take AIDS.

"The disease seems to be quite rare at this point but sooner or later, everyone

Nazi madman was secretly buried

ADOLF HITLER'S BODY FOUND!

Mummified corpse was still in South American crypt!

By TONY CASSIDY / Special correspondent

Adolf Hitler's corpse wasn't destroyed by flames outside his Berlin bunker in 1945 — it was smuggled into Argentina, where it remained hidden in a subterranean crypt for more than half a century!

A team of top Jewish pathologists say DNA tests prove beyond a doubt that mummified human remains recently found in that crypt are those of the hated Hitler!

"I must confess I wasn't surprised by the results of the DNA tests," declared team leader Dr. Haim Isaak. "I knew just by looking at the cadaver that it was Hitler.

"But my colleagues and I agree that the DNA data are conclusive proof that the remains could not possibly be anyone other than Hitler."

The mummified corpse Dr. Isaak and his colleagues examined was found by Israeli Nazi hunters acting on an anonymous tip that a wanted war criminal was buried in a crypt beneath a centuries old castle 15 miles south of Buenos Aires.

"The information we got was very sketchy and we almost ignored it," said one of the agents who smuggled the cadaver out of South America.

"But we knew the castle to be the same one that Adolf Eichmann stayed in for a time after he escaped from the Americans in Germany, so we decided to check it out.

"We didn't know who we'd find, if anybody. But when I saw that corpse I was absolutely stunned. I knew I was looking at the biggest monster the world has ever known.

"His facial characteristics were still apparent. And there are little tufts of hair over his lip that, of course, are what's left of his very distinctive mustache. Incredibly, he was even still gripping an Iron Cross, the highest award of his murderous regime. But it's the DNA that nails down the identity question.

"We compared DNA from the corpse with DNA taken from blood samples obtained when Hitler was wounded in an assassination attempt.

"The match is absolute and without question. The corpse found in South America is that of Adolf Hitler."

Experts believe that after Hitler and Eva Braun committed suicide in his Berlin bunker in 1945, Eichmann helped smuggle his body out of Germany and took it to Argentina. "There is no doubt that the male body that was incinerated with Eva's outside the bunker was not Adolf Hitler," Dr. Isaak declared. "It was a ringer."

Israeli agents tracked Eichmann for years before they finally found him hiding in Argentina. In a daring escapade, the agents kidnapped the former Nazi boss and took him to Israel. There he was convicted and hanged for his "crimes against Jews and humanity," a fate that Hitler managed to avoid by firing a bullet into his brain.

A wax dummy of Adolf Hitler had been shedding real tears since 1989 — but stopped crying the minute the evil dictator's corpse was found in South America!

"I heard a radio broadcast of the discovery at 11:20 a.m. and immediately received a call from a guard that the wax figure had law Faron, curator of the museum in Warsaw, Poland, where the dummy's displayed.

As The NEWS reported earlier, the figure began crying on Sept. 3, 1989 — the 50th anniversary of the start of World War II — and had been shedding tears continuously ever since.

"Then Hitler's body is discov- crying," Dr. Faron said. "We don't know what caused the figure to weep, but we like to think it was crying for Hitler and his terrible crimes against humanity.

"Why it suddenly stopped crying, I can't say. We may never know.

What glasses reveal about your personality!

WEARING aviator glasses means this gal is sincere and openhearted, says a top psychologist.

You can learn loads about your personality from the type of eyeglasses you wear, a top psychiatrist says.

By MIKE COREY
Special correspondent

"An individual's selection of eyeglass style offers clues to what the person is like," says Dr. Sheldon Zigelbaum, who provided this psychological analysis of several popular styles:

● Metal-rimmed glasses. Direct and straightforward in your dealings with others, you have a conservative nature, a quiet, self-assured attitude and you dislike calling attention to yourself. A shrewd consumer, you rarely buy on impulse.

● Aviator-style glasses. You are a sincere, openhearted, eager supporter of humanitarian causes. The underprivileged, the elderly, the handicapped, all those down on their luck have your sympathy. You also pride yourself on being able to get along with all types of people.

● Rimless glasses. A true pioneer, you search for an independent, self-sufficient life-style. You enjoy making your own bread, growing your own vegetables, sewing your own clothes. You have a sensitive nature, are intellectually inclined and are thoughtful and deliberate.

● Horn-rimmed frames. You have probably achieved some degree of success either financially, academically or socially, through hard work and effort. You feel no need to impress anyone and have an air of quiet assurance.

● Brightly colored eyeglasses. You are a fun-loving person who likes to be the center of attention. You are outgoing, gregarious and enjoy the company of others, are energetic — very much alive. You are apt to be socially at ease, a good conversationalist and fun to be with.

● Flamboyant, highly decorated eyeglasses. You have a decided flair for fashion and always try to look as though you just stepped out of the pages of Vogue. Imaginative and creative, you are adept at looking beyond what is, to see what could be. You can turn an ordinary day into a special event.

● Large, perfectly round-rimmed glasses. "Wise as an owl," you have a somewhat innocent approach to life, but a strong sense of justice. You are very certain of your own moral and ethical values. You cannot easily be swayed from your point of view.

● Half-glasses. You have a philosophical nature, are not easily ruffled when things go wrong and are the sort of person who stays cool in a crisis. You are emotionally well-controlled.

● Tinted glasses. You have a romantic nature, and are

Drunk hubby hops in bed — with wife's snoozing boyfriend

. . . and all hell breaks loose!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Drunk hubby John Biro went berserk when he slipped into his wife's bed and snuggled up — to her sleeping boyfriend!

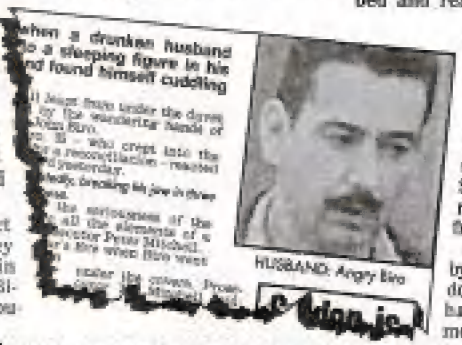
Fists flew as both men leaped out of bed and viciously tried to punch each other's lights out in the darkened bedroom.

Boyfriend Carl Apsall got the worst of it — a busted nose and a broken jaw.

"What do you expect someone to do when they find a strange man in their wife's bed?" said Biro, 33, a trucker in Westbury, England.

The tipsy hubby had gone to the home of his estranged wife Susan hoping for a reconciliation. She wasn't there, so Biro undressed, curled up in her bedroom closet and dozed off.

While the unsuspecting husband snoozed away, Apsall let himself in and went to bed.



BEDROOM BOO-BOO! John Biro's brawl with his wife's boyfriend made headlines around the world.

Biro woke up, saw a figure sleeping in his wife's bed and assumed it was her.

So he sneaked out of the closet, slipped between the sheets and cuddled up — till his wandering hands woke Apsall with a start.

When the stunned hubby realized he was fondling a guy, he dragged his naked rival out of bed and rearranged his face, shattering Apsall's jaw in three places and breaking his nose.

Unsuspecting Susan didn't hear about the brawl until the next day. She had spent the night at her girlfriend's house.

The furious hubby pleaded guilty to doing grievous bodily harm and paid almost $2,500 in fines and compensation. He also was ordered to perform 140 hours of community service.

"If it weren't for the seriousness of the injuries, the circumstances would have all the elements of a bedroom farce," prosecutor Peter Mitchell said.

How to be the life of the party!

You can be the life of any party by following these simple tips from internationally known etiquette expert Letitia Baldrige:

● Take the initiative in a social situation. Be the one who steps forward first with an outstretched hand to greet someone. If you're alone, circulate and introduce yourself.

● Work at developing a good, firm handshake — and remember to use it. It's helpful in any situation.

● Draw people into the conversation. Ask about their job or hobbies. Repeat a compliment someone else has given the person you're talking to.

● Don't get drunk. Intoxication can only make you look bad.

● Avoid negative topics. Dwelling on gloom and doom is a sure way to drive people away. Almost everyone prefers upbeat topics.

Scientists say a photograph showing the crumbling ruins of two pyramids on the planet Mars is conclusive proof that alien beings built cities on other planets long before the first primitive forms of life wriggled from the sea here on Earth!

The incredible computer-enhanced image was transmitted to Earth by NASA's latest generation of surface landers designed to transmit photographic surveys to Earth.

"This is absolutely the most staggering picture we've received since the one showing Neil Armstrong putting man's first footprint on the moon," a top NASA official said. "But this one from Mars alters everything we thought we knew about the origin of our universe.

"The pyramids on Mars prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that a form of intelligent life, one that far exceeds anything we could even begin to imagine, did inhabit Mars millions and millions of years ago . . . at a time when Earth was a mere newborn infant.

"And we must assume that same highly developed life-form eventually came to Earth and laid the groundwork for our own civilization. It's important for us to accept that.

"When you look at the pyramids on Mars and compare them with the much-younger pyramids of Egypt, the similarity of materials, shape and construction is overwhelming. They were built by the same people . . . aliens from somewhere in deep space.

"We can no longer insist that earthlings are the only living creatures in the universe. Other life is out there . . . somewhere. We just can't see them. Perhaps someday we will see them."

The incredible photograph was transmitted to Earth in segments by NASA's new CBIS-1 (Climate Balanced Imaging Surveyor) sur-

HOW TO SPOT A CRUMMY TEACHER!

NUTTY PROFESSOR made famous by Jerry Lewis.

IS YOUR CHILD'S TEACHER THE NUTTY PROFESSOR?

Is a lousy teacher ruining your child's chance at a good education? An expert offers these warning signs for spotting a teacher who's not doing his job:

✔ Your child's teacher is late in returning papers. "If your child studied hard for a test and doesn't get it back for a month to six weeks, then that teacher is not doing his or her job," said education expert Dr. Carl Marburger.

"The child needs feedback on his work as soon as possible."

✔ The teacher grades sloppily. "For example, if your child missed three questions on a test and each question is worth two points, and the teacher subtracts 10 points instead of six, that teacher is careless," said Dr. Marburger. "This can happen occasionally — teachers are only human — but if it happens a lot, the teacher's mind is not on his work.

"Also look for illegible handwriting or misspelled words when the teacher comments on a child's work. And no comments on a child's work is a bad sign."

✔ The teacher behaves inappropriately or uses inappropriate language in class. "If your child comes home and says that a teacher called him a 'dummy' or you hear stories from your child and his friends that the teacher loses his temper and yells and screams, then that teacher is doing his job badly. If a teacher can't control his temper, he's not going to be able to control a class full of kids."

✔ The teacher never contacts parents. "If your child is doing poorly in a subject, it's the teacher's job to warn you before it's too late. Good teacher-parent communication is an important part of any teacher's job."

✔ Your child is constantly bored with school. "A good teacher makes schoolwork interesting at least some of the time. If children are not inspired by some of their schoolwork, the teacher may be bored with his job."

✔ Your child reports that the teacher is not teaching. "Check with your child's classmates first, and if they confirm that the teacher is often reading the newspaper in the classroom or is constantly leaving the classroom, this teacher is definitely not doing the job."

What parents should do . . .

If you find that your child has a bad teacher, the first thing to do is to talk to the teacher himself. If he isn't responsive, then go to the school principal, advises Dr. Marburger. Calmly relate what you think the problems are. Bring along any concrete evidence you have — for example, sloppily graded papers.

If the principal isn't responsive, take your complaint to the school superintendent. Usually, the threat of such a complaint can change a teacher's behavior.

You can also ask to have your child transferred to another teacher, adds Dr. Marburger.

"If you feel the teacher's problems are continuing to harm your child's education, and you are disappointed in the teacher's improvement, a principal will often grant your request for a transfer

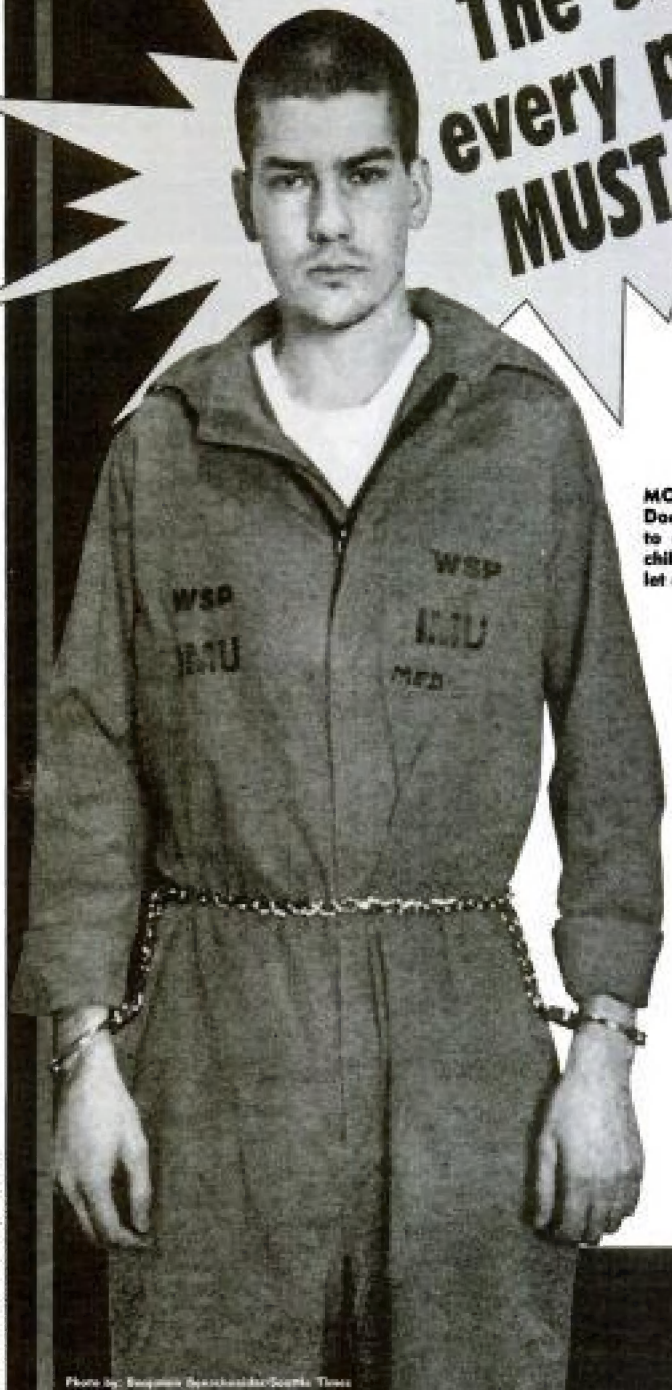
The story every parent MUST read!

HANGED CHILD MOLESTER LEAVES LETTER FOR LITTLE GIRL



MONSTER Westley Allan Dodd delivered a warning to children. The confessed child molester wrote a booklet every parent should read.

CHILD KILLER'S pen pal, Sandra Clemons, reads his chilling words.

. . . with tips on

A lesson to all kids . . . One that came too late for them!

By SUSAN JIMISON
Staff writer

Child molester Westley Allan Dodd was hanged earlier this year for torturing, raping and murdering little boys, but he left one good thing behind: A written warning to kids, telling them how to avoid fiends like him!

"My name is Wes, but since you don't really know me, I am a stranger to you," wrote Dodd, 31, in his revealing letter to a 6-year-old girl. "I'm the kind of stranger you should stay away from.

"There are other people like me. When we are nice it is so we can trick you into doing something bad. Now I can never do bad things to any more boys or girls."

The child killer — who was executed for the murders of 4-year-old Lee Iseli and brothers Cole Neer, 11, and William Neer, 10 — sent the letter to the granddaughter of his pen pal, Sandra Clemons of Cleveland, Ohio, before he was hanged in Washington state last January.

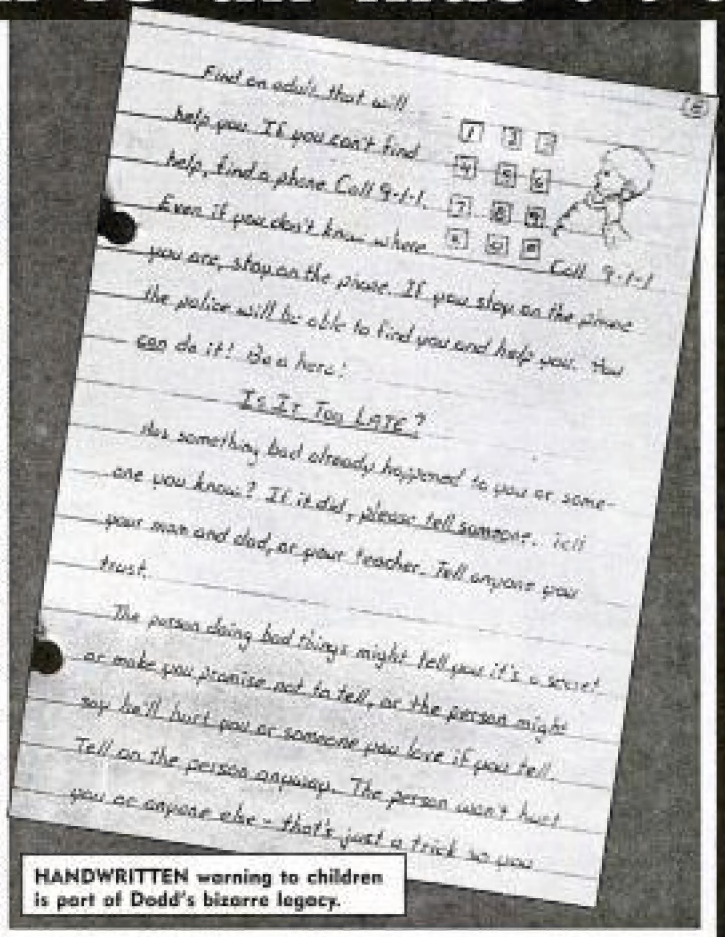
Its nine pages are filled with these tips from the confessed sex pervert:

● Just Say No! "You may have heard 'just say no' to drugs. You can also say NO to someone that tells you to take your clothes off."

● Run. "Sometimes, just saying no doesn't work. You don't have to give up — you can still get away. One day a little girl told me no. Then she ran away. I was afraid someone would see me chasing her and might take me to the police, so I let her go. She said no and ran away, so nothing bad happened to her."

● Scream! Yell! "Say anything! Just keep yelling until you get help or get away."

● Be a hero. "When you meet a stranger or anyone that wants to do something bad, get away fast and tell someone what happened! Always tell someone. Find an adult that will help you. Or find a phone and call 911. If you stay on the phone the police will be able to find you and help you."



Find an adult that will help you. If you can't find help, find a phone. Call 9-1-1. Even if you don't know where you are, stay on the phone. If you stay on the phone the police will be able to find you and help you. You can do it! Be a hero!

Is It Too Late?

Has something bad already happened to you or someone you know? If it did, please tell someone. Tell your mom and dad, or your teacher. Tell anyone you trust.

The person doing bad things might tell you it's a secret or make you promise not to tell, or the person might say he'll hurt you or someone you love if you tell. Tell on the person anyway. The person won't hurt you or anyone else — that's just a trick so you won't tell and he won't get caught. If something bad happens to you, it's not your fault. It's okay to tell someone. They can help you and you'll feel better. They can make sure it doesn't happen to you again."

HANDWRITTEN warning to children is part of Dodd's bizarre legacy.

● It's never too late. "If something bad has already happened to you, tell anyone you trust. The person doing bad things might tell you it's a secret or he might say he'll hurt you or someone you love if you tell.

"Tell on the person anyway. The person won't hurt you or anyone else — that's just a trick so you won't tell and he won't get caught. If something bad happens to you, it's not your fault. It's okay to tell someone. They can help you and you'll feel better. They can make sure it doesn't happen to you again."

Sandra Clemons said Dodd wanted to publicize his child molester letter, but authorities wouldn't let him.

"He wanted to help protect kids against people who would hurt them," says Mrs. Clemons, 48, who began corresponding with Dodd after he was arrested in 1989. "It was his dream.

"I miss him."
